'73

IT is with mingled feelings of pleasure and regret that '73, through the pages of the HAMILTONIAN, says good-by to College life. With pleasure we recall the fact that through all our course we have been united, earnest in our endeavors in every department of College excellences, ready for all true reform and unstained by any ignoble action. Yet, mingled with our joy at the thought of life opening before us, of the discomforts and disappointments of College life left behind, of our four years goal reached at last, there must come a feeling of sadness at the pleasant days hurrying into the past; days of pleasant work and bright dreaming; days from which the hand of Time has kindly erased the dark shadings of trouble, and left all radiant in our memory.

As a Class we look back on an existence calm and placid as a summer sea. No stained name stands on our Class-roll, no unworthy deed upon our records. We have always borne ourselves worthily. We have been grave or gay; dignified or uproarious; studious or jolly as circumstances demanded. In scholarship and "rowing," in speaking and ball playing, in writing and singing we have left a record of which we may well be proud. And in coming years we can look back feeling that whatever may have been our personal mistakes or misdeeds, we can yet reflect with pardonable pride that we bore the honored name of '73.

Μετ' αγῶνα στεφανος.

SCARCELY were we accustomed to the condescending title, "Underclassmen" in place of the loathsome "Fresh," than the fizzle of Differential and Theocratusical examinations warned us to prepare for an entrance into that higher sphere —the Junior life. Yes, we are Juniors. Already the name has become familiar, and the bright dreams of traditionary Junior ease have been rudely broken. As Sophomores we took delight in singing of that time in futuro when

"In Junior year we take our ease, Smoke our pipes and sing our glees," but harsh reality disproves the theory.

Without mourners, unwept and unloved Loomis and Æschylus have passed away. Let us hope that "they have gone to that bourne," &c.

With what anxious longings do we now look forward to the hour when hand in hand with our instructor, we wade still deeper into the mysterious Physical stream.

The spirit of Sophocles still hovers above us; but is slowly fading away from earthly vision, and with him disappears the last tragedy that will ever haunt the studious minds of '74.

The flashing wit, the sparkling humor, the pathetic puns of Plautus serve to chase many a frown from the fair brows of our classical brethren, as they weep in sympathy for the captives.

We look back with pleasure upon our past career, and forward with brightest hopes.

Thus early time has wrought many changes among us. Faces, once familiar in the class room are now no longer seen. Disease has fastened its relentless grasp upon some, forbidding their return. Others have assumed the cares of business; some dwell in foreign lands; one suffers an affliction second only to that of death.

Notwithstanding her losses, '74, as Juniors, remains a unit. In all those qualities which distinguish the typical Collegian it will ever remain the cynosure of an admiring world.

THE man that first said "Experientia docet," said truly; experience does teach. It taught us to spring from the slough of Freshman year into perfect and full-fledged Sophomores. To obtain an adequate idea of the glory and sublimity of being a Sophomore, of having fresh young faces turned to you for guidance and protection, and of knowing the important part you play in exercises by day and night, to obtain an adequate idea of all this, experience is necessary.

Though occurrences of Freshman year quickly fade, '75 can still recall with reasonable complacency, her numerous as well as victorious, rows.

As a Class she has been singularly conscientious in the discharge of her solemn duty towards "the gentlemen of the incoming Class." And she wishes it to be understood that if she did improve the personal appearance of '76 by frequent duckings, if she did enliven and render interesting noon chapels, if she did think fire-arms were dangerous play things for Freshmen and removed them accordingly, she did it all in obedience to the precepts of by-gone generations.

One was even (van) Martyred for the improvement-wise and otherwise of '76.

As to literary pursuits we fully live up to our fame as the most scholarly class. But alas! "no rose without a thorn," and the thorn of '75, is analytics.

Still unmindful of little drawbacks, '75 "pursues the even tenor of her way," and contentedly awaits for the requisite two years to pass when she shall demonstate her worth to the world.

Some future day her members will look back from the high places of trust in the land, and remember with pride their happy College days, and especially dear old '75, who never has been beaten and never will."

'76.

HOPEFULLY anticipating a future that will prove honorable to themselves and gratifying to those interested in them, the members of '76 send their first greeting to the friends of "OLD HAMILTON." Though our College life was commenced under circumstances of some disadvantage, we cannot but congratulate ourselves that we have successfully maintained our rights, and have evinced satisfactorily to our friends of '75, that

"Though fewer members we could boast,
Still every Freshman was a host."

Our experience in College thus far has proved a very pleasant one. On every hand we have met with consideration and encouragement. We found even the Sophs. ever disposed to manifest a lively interest in our welfare. With characteristic generosity they early prepared the "cup of cold water," and have since expressed their regard in many other voluntary attentions. Indeed we can only hope that our career in the future may be as full of pleasure and profit as that which is already past.

We feel certain that the time honored title, "Men of '76," is peculiarly applicable to us, and being possessed of a goodly measure of that spirit which the term suggests, we hope ever to prove ourselves worthy of the name. Though we boast no mighty achievements of muscle, we declare our readiness to measure mind and the true spirit of heroism with any competitor. The usual record of rows and torn clothes has been omitted, in our history thus far; but we purpose to show a list of "bloods" and "ten-strikes," which will rival any Class that has preceded us.

Society of Alumni.

This Society is composed from graduates of the College, and those upon whom it has conferred honorary or ad eundem degrees. Among its objects is the encouragement of Science and Letters, more especially in their connection with Hamilton College. It has the use of an alcove in the College Library, to which donations are solicited of books, pamphlets and papers, whose authors are Alumni of Hamilton. It seeks also the promotion of friendly feeling and sympathy among its living members, and the rendering of fit honor to the departed. Its annual meeting is held on the evening preceding Commencement. Persons who can supply information appropriate to the Triennial Catalogue or the Obituary Record, are requested to communicate the same to the Necrologist.

Statistics of '73.

The whole number who have been in the Class during any part of the course, 47; number expecting to graduate, 36.

The oldest man in the Class has attained to 28 years; the youngest to 19; the average is 22 years, 4 months, 1 day, 12 hours, 30 minutes, and 45 seconds.

The aggregate weight of the Class is $2\frac{5}{8}$ tons; the heaviest man weighs 195 pounds; the lightest, 124; average, 152.

The tallest man in the Class is 6 feet $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches; the shortest 5 feet 5 inches; average height, 5 feet $9\frac{5}{8}$ inches; aggregate height, 12 rods $1\frac{1}{3}$ yards.

Religious Element in the Class:—Presbyterians, 23; Congregational 3; Baptist, 2; Methodist, 1; Episcopalian, 1.

Professions:—Theology, 13; Medicine, 3; Law, 9; Chemistry, 1; Journalism, 3; Teaching, 2; Farming, 1; Unknown, 3.

Capillary:—Mustaches, 8; has one ordered but not yet arrived, 1; mustache and ear pegs, 2; mustache and sides, 2; mustache and chiners, 1; mustache and goatee, 1; Burnsides, 3; whiskers, 1; sprouting, 4; no hopes, 6; given up and disgusted at their unsuccessful efforts, 6.

Matrimonial Prospectus:—But seven (7) of the Class have secured the hearts and hands of the fair girls of the period. One swears to death on women; one waits to swing with the girl behind him; one waits for the next leap year; one was engaged but got out of it. The remainder are dubious, or entirely destitute of hymenial inclination.

Statistics of '74.

Whole number who have been in the Class during any part of the course—more than at present, of course. Number expecting to graduate—inquire of the Faculty.

The oldest man in the Class can remember when prize essays were written by competitors for the prize; the youngest deems this a myth.

The heaviest man in the Class weighs his words well before uttering them; the lightest is a sponge.

The "tallest" man in the Class spoils six shirts per week; the "shortest" borrows three cents Sundays to put in the contribution-box.

Religious Element in the Class:—Attend, regularly, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday prayer-meetings, 6; purloin apples after attending, 5; return home late, find the key locked inside the room, break open the door, discover that the fire is out, and not swear, 2; swear mildly, 4; without thought of the morrow, 25.

Professions:—Waiting for something to turn up, 30; turned up, 1.

Matrimonial:—He's willing, 31; she's willing, 31; both willing, 31. (This would seem a multitudinous example of "true loves running smoothly;" but alas! in every instance, the "old gentleman" is unwilling.)

Capillary:—Nothing notable save ——'s hair.
